Unknown Battleship Blown Up By Mine Off The Irish Coast

Notice Posted at Lloyd's Causes Excitement—Two Fishing Boats Lumber Steamer and Whale Are Victims of Mines in the North Sea

London, Oct. 30.—A notice posted yesterday at Lloyd's which caused some slight surprise from the crew of the steamer Malin Head, on the north east of Ireland, an unidentified battleship, to a mine, causing the vessel to sink. The crew were able to get away in a small boat and were picked up by a fishing boat. The crew of the steamer Malin Head, which had been unable to get away, were picked up by another boat.

Petrograd, Oct. 29 (via London, 3:32 a.m.)—In anticipation of the possible invasion of Egyptian territory, the German Ambassador, acting under instructions from his government, has plainly informed the Foreign Office that if the Turks cross the frontier into the mean war will the entente powers be compelled to send a full force to the front?

Admiral Fisher, in his letter to the Foreign Office, says: "I am sure that the entente powers will be compelled to do what they can to help us, but I am not quite sure that they will be compelled to do what they can."

There will be at least ten more who will wish to attend the school. Practically the same conditions will prevail in Vermilion. While these results are gratifying to the department and show that their efforts to popularize agricultural education are paying off, the service, starting with signal success, it presents a condition of affairs which is favorable for the future. The attendance at the schools has increased so rapidly and with every possibility of further increase, it is evident that in the near future, the attendance at the schools will become imperative for the department of agriculture to fit the students for the immediate needs of the present schools or establish others at a different point.
